DUTCHLAND PLASTICS CO-OWNER INDUCTED INTO A.R.M. HALL OF FAME

DAVEN CLAERBOUT LAUDED AS INVOLVED INDUSTRY LEADER

DECEMBER 14, 2011 – Oostburg, WI – Daven Claerbout, Co-Owner/Executive Vice President of Sales with Dutchland Plastics, has been inducted into the Association of Rotational Molders (ARM) Hall of Fame at the annual ARM show in Chicago. Mr. Claerbout and his brother Carl are co-owners of Dutchland. Their parents, Bill and Nancy, founded the company in 1967.

Daven has served on the ARM Board of Directors for ten of the past eleven years. He has held numerous leadership positions, including two terms as ARM President. He credited his parents with building the company and with instilling the importance of good corporate citizenship in both him and Carl.

Mr. Claerbout credited Dutchland's 200 employees for the company's success. He noted, "These people don't work for us, they work with us. They are absolutely fantastic."

Family has been a key contributor to Dutchland's success. In his induction speech, he commented about his brother Carl, Dutchland CEO and Owner, "you're not going to find someone better than Carl." His daughter Lindee (Director of Marketing and Customer Solutions), son William (Assistant Rotomolding Production Supervisor) and daughter-in-law Nicole Claerbout (pricing analyst) are also on the Dutchland team. "I'm a lucky man because I get to see my children every day," he said.

Dutchland Plastics is a leading custom manufacturer of rotational and blow molded plastic products. Founded in 1967, today Dutchland Plastics provides product and services around the world. Dutchland Plastics is a private, family-owned business that is in its second generation of ownership.
